PROCEEDINGS

(Open court:)

2.2

THE CLERK: Your Honor, this is the time set for oral argument in civil case No. 17-cv-1270-AC, Torres versus Zamanizadeh.

Would counsel in court, please, identify yourselves for the record.

MR. RICHARDSON: David Richardson, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Welcome.

MR. CALDERBANK: Tim Calderbank, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Welcome.

All right. On January 10th, I issued, at plaintiff's request, a temporary restraining order ex parte. That was Docket 15, and we set this day for the hearing on whether or not it should be extended to a preliminary injunction for the balance of the case on plaintiff's motion. I have not seen any written opposition by defendant to extending this.

Did I miss something, Mr. Calderbank?

MR. CALDERBANK: You did not, Your Honor. We have depositions from my client and his other attorney who has been helping him with the investigation by the Department of Justice, and we are prepared to submit those to the Court in opposition to the request for the preliminary injunction.

We do have a matter for the Court. Counsel and I were just discussing some issues out in the hallway, as attorneys will do sometimes, and we might have a possible avenue to a settlement without further need of the Court's assistance.

THE COURT: Okay. How can I be of assistance?

MR. CALDERBANK: In that regard, we were hoping to possibly have a two-week set-over for this particular hearing while the attorneys and obviously the parties get together to discuss a possible settlement.

I'm at a little bit of a disadvantage because I was helping Mr. Zamanizadeh and the adult care entity, just with the matter that was first started over in Vancouver, Washington, and I had it transferred over to this court. I really haven't done much more beyond that other than to talk with Mr. Richardson about a possible settlement, but with all the fine particulars of Adult Care Search and the other entities, I'm not familiar with.

So the plan or the framework that we worked out is to spend the next week or two getting the attorneys and the parties together, seeing if we can work out a settlement. And if we can't, we will come back here in two weeks, and we will do this. Hopefully we will be able report that it settled.

THE COURT: It sounds to me, and I'll give you my perspective on it, as long as the plaintiff and defense agrees, I'm not going to interfere with that. It seems to me then that the resolution is that the order that I established in my temporary restraining order, Docket 15 that I established and entered on January 10th, that will remain in place for an agreed-upon period of time. Then we will set a hearing for whenever you all tell me you want to set a hearing for.

Am I correct?

MR. CALDERBANK: The only amendment we would ask is that, not the Adult Care Search entity that is named in the lawsuit, but the related entity, Care Option, has a small amount of money within its bank account that it needs just for operating purposes.

Mr. Zamanizadeh would like to have that released just so that he can actually pay some bills and get some bills paid.

THE COURT: If the plaintiff agrees with that and has no objection, that's certainly fine with me. I think the way procedurally we should handle that is for me to have the order remain in place on the agreement of the parties. Then any time you want, if you submit to me a stipulated amendment that would allow some fund of money to be used for some purpose, as long as it is stipulated by the plaintiff, I assure you that I'll sign it and enter it.

Will that work for the parties?

MR. CALDERBANK: That works for the defense, yes.

MR. RICHARDSON: Your Honor, if I may. I was shown in the hallway, just on Mr. Zamanizadeh's phone, that there is purportedly $5,000 remaining in that account. Nothing was briefed. I don't have anything on paper. So I would prefer to not agree to it today, but to wait and have something presented to you, where we agree where is the money actually going, what is it being used for, and how much is really in the account.

THE COURT: Let me clarify. You don't have to give me that stipulation now orally. What I would do, right now, I would take everyone's oral agreement that the temporary restraining order shall remain in full force and effect by agreement of the parties, until such and such date, and we will pick a date for the hearing.

Then any time you want, Mr. Calderbank can just prepare a written amendment, if you will, or partial relief from the order -- that's probably the best way to phrase it -- a partial relief from the order that allows you to do whatever you are seeking to do.

Then if Mr. Richardson, on behalf of the plaintiff, says that he has no objection, you can then represent to me, when you file it, that it is stipulated and that plaintiff has no objection, and then I will enter that order of partial modification.

MR. CALDERBANK: That works for the defense.

MR. RICHARDSON: That works me, Your Honor, as well, but I do have one point of clarification that Mr. Calderbank and I conferred on, and there was some disagreement that maybe you can shed light on regarding specifically funds that were held in an IOLTA trust account by Mr. Calderbank or by the other attorney who is working with the Department of Justice.

The order is, I think on point, but it doesn't specifically list them. It says that he is restrained from spending, transferring, encumbering, or otherwise disposing of funds originating or traceable to my client.

I would assume, with no evidence to the contrary, that any money in his IOLTA account probably is traceable to my client's funds based on the declaration that was submitted by the Department of Justice.

MR. CALDERBANK: I have no problem freezing any assets in my IOLTA account for this account at all. I have not problem with that at all.

THE COURT: Then we have that clarified.

I will tell you my practice is, if the two of you disagree about something, I would ask for briefing about it. Then I would consider your briefing, hear your argument, either in person or by telephone, whatever makes the most sense, and I'll give you a ruling. generally won't give you a ruling based upon a disagreement that you raise for the first time orally. But it sounds like we have agreement on the record on that issue, and so I say good. MR. RICHARDSON: Thank you, Your Honor. MR. CALDERBANK: Thank you, Your Honor. THE COURT: Do you want to set a date for a hearing now or do you just want to let --MR. CALDERBANK: Counsel has some travel plans. I'm pretty wide open. My calendar is free. I think Mr. Zamanizadeh is open. So I think --MR. RICHARDSON: I was hoping for perhaps two weeks from today, just to give us a little more time, but not be too far into the future, and, of course, depending upon your calendar, Your Honor. THE COURT: Two weeks from today is February 2nd. I think I'm leaving town on the 3rd, so that would be fine. I'm leaving town on the 3rd. It looks like we can give you February 2nd. I will note that that is Groundhog Day, so you're perfectly welcome to make the 1

     same arguments over and over.
 3
               Any particular time you all want?
 4
               MR. CALDERBANK:
                                Three or four o'clock.
 5
               THE COURT: Four o'clock on a Friday? Let's do 6
     it earlier.
 7
               MR. CALDERBANK: I live in Corbett, so I try to 8
     do the whole -- 9
               THE COURT: Can I compromise with 10
     three o'clock?
11
               MR. CALDERBANK: That sounds great.
12
               MR. RICHARDSON:
                               Great.
13
               THE COURT: Mary, can we do that?
               THE CLERK:
14
                          Yes.
15
               THE COURT: We will continue the PI hearing
     until February 2nd at 3:00 p.m.
16
17
               In the meantime, on the agreement of the parties, the temporary restraining order shall continue 18
19
     in full force and effect. Obviously both parties have leave to file any stipulated requests to modify the 20
     order, as they wish.
21
22
               Let me also suggest, too, if you do resolve the 23
     matter, then obviously you don't need to come here on 24
     Friday, February 2nd. Just file your stipulated 25
     dismissal or whatever else you would be filing or notify

my courtroom deputy that you have resolved the matter, and there is no need for a hearing. But if you want to be here at three o'clock on Friday, February 2nd, we will do what we need to do.
          If it turns out, by the way, that you can't resolve it and that you're going to have a dispute over something that you want me to resolve on February 2nd, confer with each other and give me an appropriate briefing schedule that at least gets the last brief in my hands two days before that hearing, say 5:00 p.m. on January 31st. So if you can't resolve it, do your briefing. Whatever you agree upon is fine with me, provided I get the last brief by 5:00 p.m. on the 31st.
That will give me the 1st to read it. Then we can have our hearing on the 2nd if we have to.
          Will that work for everyone?
         MR. RICHARDSON: Yes, Your Honor.
         MR. CALDERBANK: Yes, Your Honor.
          THE COURT: Anything else I can help either side with?
         MR. CALDERBANK:
         MR. RICHARDSON: I don't believe so.
          THE COURT: Thank you all very much. Good luck to you.
